

VICKY CHAV CHIC FOR HIGH STREET

VICTORIA Beckham's fashion range has been given a royal seal of approval. Princess Madeleine of Sweden, 23, has been seen in a £150 pair of Rock & Republic jeans, designed by Posh. But the 31-year-old has been at the centre of a storm over the crown logo she uses. Last month we revealed how our royal officials launched a probe to see if it breached copyright owned by the Queen.

LITTLE Britain chav queen Vicky Pollard is set to become a fashion icon.

Creator Matt Lucas has been approached by designers to launch a line based on Vicky's trademark tracksuit tops and scrunchies.

The designers are convinced a Vicky brand of chav chic would be a massive hit. An industry insider said: "Little Britain is incredibly popular so we reckon Vicky clothes would be a guaranteed winner."

by IAIN BURCHELL

But joker Matt, 31, confessed: "I thought, 'Who'd actually wear that?'" He and co-star David Walliams, 33, have already raked in a fortune from Little Britain merchandise, including a host of character dolls.

FASHION ICON: Vicky's brand of clobber is tipped to be a winner

MI5 spy build-up

MI5 wants to recruit 800 new spies to combat Muslim terrorists. Intelligence chiefs have demanded an extra £50million a year to expand G-Branch which fights Islamist extremists.

MI5 boss Eliza Manningham-Buller, 57, plans to hire "streetwise" young Muslims to infiltrate hardline groups. The move comes after al-Qaida branded the Queen an "enemy of Islam".

NOW 'GOD SAVE QUEEN' OFFENDS MUSLIM KIDS

A SCHOOLBOY was thrown out of class for scribbling "God Save The Queen" on a book, because it might offend Muslims.

Shocked Tristan Simpkins, 14, was marched out of a religious education lesson as stunned pupils looked on.

He had penned the words from the national anthem on the cover of his exercise book.

But his teacher said it would upset Islamic kids in the class.

Locked

Tristan's furious dad Michael accused the Corsham School in Wiltshire of politically-correct madness.

Mr Simpkins, 45, is threatening to remove his son from RE lessons because he says they focus on other religions and overlook Christianity.

He claims bibles are locked away in classrooms.

"We read in the papers all the time about how we offend other faiths. But no-one

by GARY NICKS

ever thinks about what offends Christians," he said.

"We are being indoctrinated with Islam and I find it offensive. By all means, teach it to children but compare it to other faiths. It is definitely over-emphasised.

"During the RE lesson, the bibles are locked away in the classroom because they are apparently not relevant.

"But my son says the Koran is always on display. One lesson they were teaching Mohammed and Tristan was bored so he got his bible out. The teacher called me at home and questioned it."

Deputy head Irene Large said: "The GCSE syllabus requires the study of Christianity and one major world faith, which is Islam.

"Parents have the right in law to withdraw their children from RE. At this time no child has been withdrawn from RE at our school."

POLITICAL CORRECTNESS GONE MAD

IMPRESSED: Jamie Oliver

Italians bin the twizzler

JAMIE Oliver has taken turkey twizzlers to Italy where dinner ladies asked if they were dog-food.

Viewers this week see him in the poor region of Puglia where children get healthy three-course meals.

And the chef, 30, wants even more cash for school dinners after he discovered Italians get a massive 90p a portion.

Frying

Jamie said: "No frying at all." He added: "The spend is just over 90p, Greenwich was 37p."

And when he showed the twizzlers, he was asked: "Is this dog food?" before they were thrown in the bin.

Jamie's Great Escape is on Wednesday at 8.30pm on Channel 4.

Booze thugs blitzed

BRITAIN'S biggest crackdown on drunken yobs is being launched today - 10 days before 24-hour drinking is legalised.

The new Government campaign includes £150,000 to advertise on-the-spot fines for disorder.

The posters warn "Get drunk and disorderly, get arrested, get an £80 fine".

Binge

One shows a man urinating cash down a drain, and another spelling out £80 in vomit.

A Home Office spokesman said: "It is a clear signal that alcohol-related disorder won't be tolerated."

Shadow Culture Secretary Theresa May said: "Extended hours will mean more binge drinking and anti-social behaviour."

BEATEN TO A PULP FOR BEING CLEVER

Pretty Danielle attacked after school awards

BEATEN UP: Danielle's injuries

A STAR pupil was battered by a gang of girl bullies only hours after getting two top school awards.

Danielle Price, 15, was celebrating her double award for excellence when the thugs struck.

by TOM BEDFORD

One girl has now been suspended from school after Danielle needed hospital treatment for her facial injuries.

Grabbed

Tearful Danielle said: "I was really pleased to get the awards and my name was called out in assembly."

"But as I was on morning break I was lured over by a group of older girls.

"I thought they were going to congratulate me but I was jumped on from behind and my neck was grabbed.

"I was terrified. My nose was bleeding, my eyelid was split and my eyes were swollen up.

"It should have been one of my best days in school, but I spent the rest of the day in hospital."

Danielle won awards for excellence in German and Humanities at Llangatwg comprehensive in Neath, south Wales.

Her furious mother Viv Price reported the assault to police.

She said: "It can only have been caused by jealousy."

School headteacher Roger Skilton said: "Appropriate action has been taken."

Insp Stuart Lewis, of South Wales Police, said that investigations into the incident were continuing.

BULLYING 'EPIDEMIC'

SCHOOLS face an epidemic of bullying, the Government's first children's tsar has warned.

Children's Commissioner Professor Al Aynsley-Green wants pupils to answer questionnaires on the subject every term to help stamp it out.

He said: "I have no doubt that children are being brought up in a society where violence is the norm in many ways.

"I include in this the violence on television, in the workplace and in the home."

He was speaking a week before the launch of Anti-Bullying Week next Monday.

And his warning came days after 15-year-old Natasha Jackman was stabbed five times at Collingwood College in Camberley, Surrey.

I'm self-employed, so I usually try to work through an injury, but when I fractured my leg, that was it. No work. Luckily I'd taken out RapidCash and they paid me £3,000 tax-free.

TOMMY Lee has admitted he likes to be the centre of attention. Shock. Talking to Orange Playlist this Wednesday on ITV 1 the 43-year-old declares: "I've always wanted to be up front, singing. That's why I always made such a spectacle on my drum solos cause I like being THE party, not just being at the party, I like to BE the party. Got the message dude."

JOE MOTT'S AWARD WINNING HOT

Edited by KIM DAWSON

For Pete's sake stop it!

Picture: BARRY CLACK

Nadine is a Girl of note

IT doesn't take a science whizz to confirm Nadine Coyle is a perfect biological specimen. The slinky singer, 20, joined her Girls Aloud pals - minus Sarah Harding, 23, who is on her sickbed - to switch on the Christmas lights at Birmingham's Millennium Square on Saturday and belt out single Biology, which is released today.

CRAIG PLEA TO 'SHAKE UP' STAR

CRAIG David has called for those around Pete Doherty to "shake" him before it's too late.

The R&B star became overwhelmed by Babyshambles frontman Pete's musical expertise after tuning into a telly programme on him.

Now, Craig, 24, fears a major British talent could be lost if Pete, 26 - whose band's new album Down In Albion, is out today - doesn't clean up his act.

Talking to Hot he explained: "I think Pete Doherty is incredibly talented. I watched him on a documentary and was mesmerised."

"He's a distinguished musician and brilliant at playing the guitar."

"It's a shame no-one has shaken him and said, 'Wake up'. I feel sorry at the glorifying around him. He needs help."

Kind Craig opened up his heart as sales of his latest album The Story Goes... pushed him up the ladder as the biggest-selling R&B artist Britain has produced. Craig, above, added: "R&B is in a transitional period. Next year will be very different."

The biggest change will be the lack of Eminem, 33, who has announced plans to retire.

Craig said: "It's such a shame. He's a true poet. Stan is one of the best songs ever made."

"I hope he takes a break and comes back."

Divo hit the top

IL Divo are hoping Simon Cowell will dish them out a Crimble bonus after they scored his label another No.1 album.

The pop-opera quartet went straight to the top with Ancora yesterday, following labelmates Westlife's triumphs.

Chuffed Sebastian Izambard, 31, rang to tell me: "It's unbelievable."

"We are No.1 in Australia too so it's fantastic news."

"Let's hope Simon gives us a Christmas bonus. Westlife deserve it too as they work just as hard." Generous fella.

MOTT

RADIO 1 have lined up some fine acts for a special gig. The fantastic Hard-Fi, Charlotte Church, 19, Pussycat Dolls, McFly and Sean Paul, 33 will entertain the crowds at Shepherds Bush Empire on November 27.

Gavin is The One for Lotte

by MARIANNA PARTASIDES

★ WILD child Charlotte Church could be set to tie the knot with rugby hunk Gavin Henson.

In the past the Welsh diva has always said it is "far too early" to talk about marriage, for fear of scaring off Gav, 23.

★ But now Charlotte admits her future is definitely with the beefy star. Looking five years ahead, Charlotte, 19, said: "I'll be in my new house in Llandaff. There'll be a couple of kids and Gavin by my side."

★ Crazy Chick singer Charlotte added: "I really do love Gavin with every fibre of my being. I really do believe he's The One." "Mind you, I could just sit and look at him all day. He's absolutely gorgeous in the flesh. So fit."

VALLEY PLANS: Welsh songbird Charlotte says she can see a future with Gavin, left, and at least two kids

GIRLS WIN SEX BATTLE

Lusty lasses rule in bed

BRITISH women are taking the lead when it comes to nookie.

Modern girls prefer to say where, when and even how they want to have sex.

They are finally winning the battle of the sexes in the bedroom, according to the biggest-ever sex survey.

Twelve thousand adults across the country were quizzed.

The study found more women than men admit to fantasising about gay sex, with almost a third of married women trying it.

British women are also more likely to want to go wild, with a fifth saying their favourite place to have sex is outdoors. A kinky

by MARIANNA PARTASIDES

5% said they were members of the Mile High Club and liked doing it in a plane, while another 4% opted for a train.

And the kitchen was the unexpected love location inside the house, with 4% claiming it was their number one nookie nest.

Cheeky

The survey for the adult lifestyle show Erotica in London's Olympia - from Wednesday to Sunday this week - also revealed one in five women would not mind being watched by a stranger.

And a cheeky 4% said they make sure they are watched on a regular basis. But the boys are more bashful, with only 15% saying they want an audience.

More than half of women (58%) also admitted they dress up for sex, with raunchy lingerie, nurse or schoolgirl outfits coming out on top.

But only a quarter of men (27%) said they do the same, with a fireman's uniform the most popular.

Most women in their 40s agree that sex improves with age.

The study also found 31% of women fantasise about group sex, compared to 40% of men.

And 12% of women have tried an orgy, compared to 14% of men.

But 80% of women and 95% of men said they would sleep with someone for £1million.

SECRETS OF THE NAUGHTY

THEN: Gorgeous Jo revealed her 35-24-35 figure in 1992 and was so successful that she went on to address the Oxford Union and front several satellite TV shows. But she's probably best remembered for her appearance in Blur's saucy Country House video which they released in 1995.

NOW: Jo, 33, retired from modelling in 2001 and now makes a healthy living from making personal appearances in bars and nightclubs across the country.

She also starred in reality TV show Extreme Celebrity Detox in February of this year, where she had to take mind-bending drugs in the Peruvian jungle.

THEN: The most memorable Page 3 babe from the 80s, she was an institution.

NOW: Sam, 39, took up singing and has just released an album called Angels With Attitude in Canada. Over here, she tours nightclubs and occasionally appears on TV and in magazines. She was most recently in Five's Race Swap, trying to pass herself off as a 60-year-old Asian.
